Miscellaneous

19-011202
On December 12, 2019, at approximately 8 p.m., the Nome Police Dispatch Center received a report that a male was holding a handgun and pointing it at people in front of Breakers Bar at 243 W. Front St. Inv. Harrison, Sgt. Morris, and Officer E. Jachim responded to the scene. Sgt. Morris and Officer E. Jachim immediately located the suspect, identified as Xavier Pete, 31, Nome. Xavier made a bunch of drunken, incoherent statements, and denied the allegation and later made some tacit admissions. Inv. Harrison was able to identify multiple victims from outside and inside of the bar that they were afraid of being injured, causing patrons to hide and fall to the floor due to the way the gun was pointed at them. Pete was remanded to the Anvil Mountain Correctional Center for four counts of Assault in the Third Degree and held with no bail set.

Promotion and New Hire
Effective, December 16, 2019, Investigator Wade "Gray" Harrison is promoted to the rank of Sergeant. Sgt. Harrison is working on his Master's Degree in Justice Administration and is excited to continue serving the City of Nome.

Communications Officer Jessica Saclamana has returned to NPD part-time, effective December 16, 2019; Jessica brings many years of experience and has a wide knowledge base of the department and the City of Nome.

The cards have only been in circulation for a few weeks and he said the reaction has been very enthusiastic. "People have said they didn't realize how old some of these rockfish are, how long it takes them to reach maturity; the fact that we have so many species in Alaska was, I think, shocking. Some folks have said they are using the cards to learn about a rockfish per day and get familiar with them," Olson said. "It's a fun and engaging way to interact with the public and express concerns we're having with rockfish and where we're making improvements."

The rockfish cards are available for free at ADF&G offices at Kodiak, Anchorage, Homer, Douglas/Juneau headquarters, Ketchikan, Petersburg, Wrangell and Sitka.

Fishing for fees

Fewer Alaska fishermen are going after halibut and sablefish, based on the declining number of bills being sent out to those holding shares of the catch. Eighteen hundred invoices went out to fishermen this month, down 30 from last year, and reflecting a decline from nearly 2,000 in 2015. The bills, paid annually in those two fisheries since the year 2000, cover costs of the management, data collection, and enforcement of any "limited access privilege" (LAP) fishery overseen by the federal government. They are based on a one to three percent tax assessed on dock prices averaged across the state.

This year the 3 percent fee for both halibut and sablefish (up from 2.8 percent) yielded $4.5 million in recovery costs. A sinking sablefish market brought down the value of the two fisheries, despite an uptick for halibut. "The combined value of the halibut and sablefish fisheries this year was $150 million, which reflects a 7 percent decrease over last year's value of $161 million," said Carl Greene, Cost Recovery Fee Coordinator for NOAA Fisheries in Juneau.

The Alaska halibut harvest of 16.5 million pounds was valued at over $87 million. For sablefish a catch of 21 million pounds was worth about $63 million at the docks. "The sablefish dock prices were down about 20 percent to average $2.96 down from $3.68 in 2018," Greene said.

Conversely, the value of the halibut fishery was up 3 percent and dock prices remained stable. "It was mainly due to the volume of the fishery," he said. "The change in pounds went up by 4 percent this year and the halibut dock price held stable. It was $5.30 a pound versus $5.35 for 2018."

Homer retained its title of Alaska's top halibut port followed closely by Kodiak, Seward, Sitka and Petersburg.

The Bering Sea crab fisheries also operate under a catch share system and since 2005 have chipped in for coverage costs. NOAA Fisheries doesn't track dock prices for Bering Sea crab, only the total value of the fishery. The 2018/2019 season was valued at $178 million for 17 fishing co-op groups, a $14 million increase. Greene said crabbers paid a fee of just under two percent for fishery coverages, yielding $3 million.

Since 2016, nearly 20 big boats fishing for flatfish, pollock, cod and other groundfish in the Bering Sea, including vessels owned/operated by Western Alaska Community Development Quota (CDQ) groups, have been paying about $2 million in coverage costs, at a tax rate of less than one percent.

"The costs to enforce those fisheries is much less relative to the total value of the fishery, so it's been under one percent since we started the program in 2016. There's a lot fewer boats and entities to monitor," Greene explained.

AK seafood snapshot

Alaska's seafood industry is driven by over 9,000 fishing vessels including about 100 large catcher processors and 100 large shoreside plants.

Alaska is home to six of the nation's top ten ports by value and the industry generates more than $150 million in public revenue annually. Seafood accounts for the largest manufacturing sector in the state. Those are some of industry updates compiled by the McDowell Group.

Other findings:
Alaska's seafood industry puts 58,700 people to work and generates $2.1 billion in wages and $5.6 billion in economic output.

Alaska's biggest catch is pollock and its most valuable is salmon.

The volume of Alaska's catches averaged 5.8 billion pounds for 2017 and 2018 with pollock contributing 58 percent, followed by salmon at 14 percent. Flatfish and rockfish comprised 13 percent of the catch volume and cod at 12 percent.

The dockside value of Alaska's catches totaled $2 billion with salmon accounting for 33 percent of the value. Halibut, sablefish and crab combined for 24 percent, Alaska pollock was at 23 percent and cod accounted for 11 percent of the total harvest value.

Nearly 800 million pounds of over 40 species of flatfish, rockfish and Atka mackerel were caught in 2018 worth $440 million.

Eighty-five percent of Alaska's seafood is sold frozen. Headed and gutted whole fish make up 41 percent of the value, with fillets at 20 percent. Only three percent of Alaska's seafood goes into cans.

About 80 percent of Alaska seafood is exported; export value fell 4 percent in 2018.

Alaska's 3.4 billion pound pollock catch was worth $1.5 billion to fishermen last year.

Alaska's cod supplies are at a 20 year low and declining; red king crab harvests are at a 50-year low. Alaska accounts for just 10-15 percent of the global red king crab supply and less than 10 percent of snow crab supply.

The biggest uncertainties facing Alaska's seafood industry: changing ocean conditions and ongoing trade disputes.

Public Notice Under AS 38.05.945

2020 Nome Offshore Lease Sale for Locatable Minerals

In accordance with AS 38.05.035 and AS 38.05.250 in 2011, the State of Alaska Department of Natural Resources (DNR), Division of Mining, Land and Water (DMLW) produced the Final Finding and Decision to hold an offshore lease sale for locatable minerals for tide and submerged lands offshore of Nome, Alaska. The conclusion of the finding and decision found that it was in the best interest for the State of Alaska and its residents to offer a portion of the proposed area for competitive bidding, providing time to monitor the environmental effects of mining and reserving portions of the sale area for possible future lease sales. As a result, 83 leases were offered for just over 23,000 acres of land. A total of 10 established leases and one modified lease with a total of about 1060 acres were never given or have since been terminated. Therefore, DNR will be having a lease sale for the already established offshore lease tracts that currently do not have a lessee. The proposed lease sale will include lands in the table listed below, and are referenced in our Land Administrative System (LAS) at: <http://dnr.alaska.gov/landrecords/>.

The 2020 Nome Lease Sale will be a sealed bid process, with a live, open to the public reading of the sealed bids on March 23, 2020. Miners will be able to make and send their sealed bids to the State of Alaska starting on January 1, 2020 until 5:00pm (AKST) on February 28, 2020. The minimum bid for each tract is indicated in in the bidding packet available on our website at: (<http://dnr.alaska.gov/mlw/mining/nome/>). Additional information including a map, bidder Statement of Qualifications, bidding instructions and forms, and lessee's responsibilities are also available in the packet online.

Successful bidders in the lease sale will receive an offshore mining lease which grants exclusive right to the locatable minerals in the offshore leased boundaries on state-owned tide and submerged land. The lease tracts which range in size from 34 to 375 acres will be issued for a term of 10 years subject to renewal. Before mining operations are conducted on the leases, the operator or lessee will be required to acquire all necessary permits from the regulating agencies having jurisdiction.

Tract	ADL	Acreage	Legal Description
1	603853	40	That portion of the E 1/2 SE 1/4 of Section 3, T12S, R33W, KRM that is below mean high water.
